TRADITIONAL VALUES COALITION

Andy --

About a week ago, 29 turncoat Republicans voted to codify an amendment that would codify Obama's reckless executive order forcing private contractors to adhere to federal "non-discrimination" policies favoring transgenders in the workplace -- an amendment that failed by one vote (thankfully).

So you can imagine what happened next. In an 11th hour vote this past Wednesday, 43 sellout Republicans turned their back on America and shook hands with the Obama administration -- and voted up a similar amendment that passed.

Enough is enough -- it's time to name names and call these losers out. If in BOLD? They voted twice -- and some of these names are going to absolutely SHOCK you:

Feel free to call the Capitol Hill Switchboard at (202) 224-3121 and let them know how their vote barring federal contractors from "discriminating" against transgenders in the workplace is codifying and not getting transgenders the mental help they so desperately need.

Just what is "discrimination" nowadays? It's more than just bathrooms:

- In New York? It's not calling a transgender 'ze' or 'hir' in the workplace;
- In Oregon? It's being sued for not calling a teacher 'they' in the classroom;
- In Virginia? It's for not allowing students to use a bathroom based on 'identity' rather than l

Discrimination? Is pretty much whatever the hurt feelings of a transgender say they are. Or any Christian.

Congress should not be codifying Obama's transgender agenda. Moreover, Congress should private employers just because they happen to do business with public institutions.

TVC intends to take this argument to the next level. Christians in America should not be forced to the government -- period.

Sincerely,
